

ALLIES FORCE NEW CRISIS IN GREECE

Transport Troops Across Peninsula Over Protest of King Constantine.

SALONIKI, April 17.—French air flotillas bombarded enemy camps at Strumitza and Bogantzi yesterday.

LONDON, April 17.—Decisive steps by the allies have forced a new crisis at Athens, with the possibility that Greece may find herself thrust into the war against her will.

Overriding the objections of the Greek government the allies have begun transporting Serbian troops overland by rail from Corfu to Saloniki. The Austrian and German governments, according to Athens dispatches today, protested several days ago that they would regard it as a deliberately unfriendly act if Greece permitted this troop movement.

French correspondents at Athens report that King Constantine is incensed at the action of the allies, and may attempt to stop the transportation of Serbian troops by a show of arms.

The allies did not want to transport the newly-equipped Serbian army from the island of Corfu to Saloniki by water because of the danger from Austro-German submarines. They, therefore, suggested to Premier Skoufoulis that the Serbian troops be sent to Patras by steamer and then transported by rail.

The Greek prime minister sounded out the German and Austrian ministers on this suggestion. They telegraphed their governments and received immediate replies that both Germany and Austria would consider that Greece had overstepped the bounds of neutrality if she acquiesced in the allies' suggestion.

This information was at once communicated to the ministers of the allies. Premier Skoufoulis added that Serbian troops would have to pass through Piræus, the port of Athens, in a movement by rail and that their presence near the capital might inflame the people to violent demonstrations.

The allies, however, proceeded with their arrangements, and the first Serbian detachment to be landed at Patras reached Saloniki on Saturday.

GENERAL WOOD SEES WAR CLOSE AHEAD

Urges Preparedness in Address Made to Two New York Church Audiences.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Major Gen. Leonard Wood, speaking at the Church of the Ascension forum last night, said that this country may look forward to a war with some first class power.

"Never in the history of the United States since it became a leader in world events," said General Wood, "have we been engaged in war with a power of the first order. That is something ahead of us."

He urged the importance of military training, and appealed especially to the women in the audience not to oppose training camps and military preparedness for their husbands and sons.

To send an army of untrained men to war would be a useless sacrifice, he said, and mention of the attack on the Turkish war office admitted in a statement tonight that "villages near Constantinople" were bombarded "unsuccessfully" by two enemy aeroplanes.

General Wood spoke in the Congressional church of Flushing on preparedness, federalization of the national guard, and Government owned munition plants. He is in favor of the first two, but against the last.

He said the national guard had 400,000 officers and men and did all it could for them under a defective system, but that in case of war what was needed was a weapon of defense, a unit, and not a lawsuit.

Discussing Government ownership of munition works he said that in time of peace the Government would have a great army of officers and mechanics on its payrolls who would have little to do except to wait for a war.

He said the men in charge of a Federal plant would not keep pace with private enterprises and that he would not be concerned with the cost of production.

He made a plea to his women hearers: "It will be your husbands and sons who will have to fight if war comes," he said. "You want to give them a chance for their lives."

Officials of the school present to testify against the prisoner were President Patterson, T. H. Pence, vice president of the college, W. M. Sturges and W. M. Klenau. Dearstyne stated his home was in Baltimore.

Jed Watching Stockings To Locate Bride-to-Be

CHICAGO, April 17.—Jedediah Silverhorn, fifty-three, Ashtabula county, Ohio, was here today looking for his "bride-to-be," a thirty-seven-year-old blonde, "wearing white shoes with white stockings peeping out between the top of the shoes and a blue skirt."

Jed was to have met her yesterday. After waiting at the depot he told the police he counted 74 women wearing white stockings, and shoes. "And, going in it, the Chicago women—they got mighty sick ankles."

His bride-to-be, said Jed, was Mrs. Anna Thompson, whose acquaintance he made through a matrimonial paper.

SCIENTISTS HONOR PINCHOT AND ABBE

Former Forester and Weather Bureau Organizer Awarded Medals by National Academy

Awards of medals to Gifford Pinchot, former chief of the United States forestry service, and Cleveland Abbe, organizer of the United States weather service "for eminence in the application of science to the public welfare" featured the opening session of the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences at the New National Museum today.

Scores of the leading authorities of the country on scientific subjects, men who have devoted their lives and achieved fame in specific scientific study, were assembled in the large auditorium when Dr. William H. Welch, dean of the Medical School of Johns Hopkins University, and one of the world's eminent pathologists, introduced Dr. J. M. Stewart, of the Rockefeller Institute of New York, who read the first paper.

Announced By Dr. Welch. The announcement of the award of the medals to Pinchot and Abbe was made by Dr. Welch, president of the Academy during the reading of his annual report.

The actual presentation of the medals will take place later in the meeting, which will continue throughout today, tomorrow, and Wednesday, concluding on the afternoon of the latter day at 4 o'clock.

Dr. Simon Flexner, head of the Rockefeller Institute, who was scheduled to read a paper on " finer Mechanisms of Protection from Infection," was not present when his name was called, and is expected to read his paper at this afternoon's session.

The papers read by Dr. Melitzer and Dr. L. S. Kleiner and Dr. J. M. Stewart, all of the Rockefeller Institute, were entitled, respectively, "Permeability of Endothelia," "The Influence of Morphine Upon the Elimination of Intravenously Injected Dextrose," and "The Sex of a Parthenogenetic Frog."

Only Males Produced.

Dr. Loeb told of his discovery in his experiments with frogs that while living things can be chemically created by artificial fertilization in the case of this class of animals, only males can be produced.

"Parthenogenesis" is the term used to describe artificially created frogs. Dr. Loeb said that he had managed to keep a number of such frogs alive for a year. He said that his experiments led him to believe that the creation of the embryo is limited to the male.

The award of the medal to Mr. Pinchot, according to the report of President Loeb, was "for distinguished public service in organizing and directing the movement for the systematic conservation of the natural resources of the United States."

In recommending the award of the medal the committee says: "Only a few years ago the tendency in the United States to squander its natural resources was lamentable. Mr. Pinchot's efforts brought about the reaction in favor of conservation, finding earnest sympathy and support from Mr. Roosevelt during his first Presidential term."

Owes Much To Abbe.

"It is apparent that the weather service of the United States owes a large measure of its efficiency to Mr. Abbe," says the committee report of the Abbe award. "Warnings have been sent out by this service which have saved great numbers of lives and vast sums of money."

William M. Davis, of Cambridge, Mass., opened the discussion of the need of a comprehensive exploration of the Pacific Ocean. Others who took part in the discussion were J. Walter Fewkes, of the American Bureau of Ethnology; William H. Dall, of the Smithsonian Institution; H. A. Pilory, of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia; John F. Hayford, Northwestern University; Charles Schubert, Yale University; Joseph P. Iddings, United States Geological Survey; E. W. Morley, of Harvard University, and D. W. Campbell, Stanford University.

"CLEAN-UP, PAINT-UP" CAMPAIGN IS BEGUN

Crusade Being Conducted Here by Master Painters and House Decorators.

The 1916 clean-up paint-up campaign began today.

The campaign is being conducted under the auspices of the Master Painters' and House Decorators' Association. In a statement issued today W. F. Andrews, president of the association, gives a number of reasons to show that the painters and decorators are the logical leaders in a war against dirt and disease.

Their work, he says, affords them an opportunity to note insanitary conditions and to suggest to the housekeeper or owner the best means of remedying them.

The association urges a general cleaning of all premises, the removal of ashes, dirt and trash from cellars, garrets, and stables, followed by painting or whitewashing. Particular care, it is advised, should be given to sick rooms. Where new papering is needed the old paper, it is stated, should be removed.

The association today distributed to the school children 57,000 buttons bearing the inscription, "Clean-up Paint-up." The children are expected to be active agents in the campaign, and will devote a part of their Easter holidays to cleaning their own homes.

The association has distributed also 2500 "Clean-up Paint-up" signs for display on business vehicles. Attention will be directed to the movement also through the medium of the moving picture theaters which have been asked to display "Clean-up Paint-up" signs.

Real estate men are asked to aid by cleaning and renovating the vacant premises under their control and by the removal of waste paper and trash from vacant lots.

The campaign probably will last four weeks. Heretofore, the campaign has lasted only a week, but this year it was decided to afford plenty of time for the work. Meetings of the association will be held from time to time to discuss the progress of the work and to consider suggestions.

Rotary Club Arranging For Annual Convention

Joseph Dolph, chairman of the convention committee of the Washington club, is arranging for the delegation to represent this city at the annual meeting of the International Association of Rotary Clubs in Cincinnati July 16, 17, 18, 19, and 20.

The local party, including both men and women, will number at least twenty-five. The delegation will probably leave Washington July 15.

The two official delegates have not yet been named. George W. Harris, president of the Washington club, will take an active part in the convention as a governor of the international organization, representing the District of Pennsylvania, Delaware, and other adjacent territory.

The Cincinnati club has arranged a series of entertainments for both the Rotarians and the women members of their families who attend. The program will include concerts, sight-seeing tours, and a ball.

How Physiologists

Regard Coffee

In a recent article, Dr. W. A. Evans, editor of the "How to Keep Well" column of the Chicago Tribune, says:

"In order that no misunderstanding may arise, I should say that physiologists regard Coffee, Tea, Tobacco and Whiskey as drugs in the same sense as Opium and Cocaine are. From coffee at one end of the line to cocaine at the other, no pot has the right to call the kettle black."

The average cup of coffee contains about 2 1-2 grains of caffeine, a habit-forming drug—not enough in one cup to seriously harm. But, when used regularly, it is for many the cause of sleeplessness, nervousness, heart trouble, mental and physical fatigue, and a host of other complaints.

POSTUM

on the other hand, is a pure food-drink made of roasted wheat and a little molasses. It tastes much like coffee, but contains no caffeine nor other injurious drug.

Postum comes in two forms: The original Postum Cereal, which must be boiled; 15c and 25c packages; and Instant Postum, a soluble form that produces the beverage instantly—a level teaspoonful to a cup of hot water; 30c and 50c tins. Both forms are equally delicious, and the cost is about the same—one-half cent per cup.

Even a ten-day trial will place the average person far enough away from coffee troubles to prove
